When do you use Form L 1d?

- You want a church contribution that you can give to your partner¹⁾ or a child²⁾ have paid for you (read Point A).
- You want a church contribution that has been transferred to you not to be taken into account or reduced, because your partner¹⁾ or one of your parents has paid for it (read point B).
- You have donated payments to a foreign beneficiary organisation or foreign church/religious establishment (read point C).
- You purchased insurance periods before 2017 and want - as before - the single premium spread over ten year (read point D).
- You bought additional insurance periods in 2022 for yourself and want the single premium spread over ten years (read point E).
- In 2022 you purchased insurance periods for your partner¹⁾ or a child²⁾ or made payments for voluntary continued insurance for these persons (read point F).
- You want a transmitted subsequent purchase of insurance periods/voluntary continued insurance with you not to be taken into account or reduced because your partner¹⁾ or a parent paid for you (read point G).
- You want company benefits to be considered as special expenses (read point H).
- You want to amend the transmission of company benefits (read point I).

A. You paid church dues for your spouse or child

Fill in point 2 and point 3.

Note:

- You can find out in FinanzOnline which amount was transmitted for you
- The amount that was specified and has been received in the contribution account is always transmitted. A separate transmission also occurs in the case of joint contribution prescribing (joint contribution account of spouses). In FinanzOnline you can see which amount has been transmitted.

- The transmitted amount will be included in the decision.
- But if you want to sell more because you also paid for your partner or child, then use form L 1d.

Example:

The married couple Andrea and Franz K. received 350 euros in church contribution for 2022. Both find out in FinanzOnline what amount the church has transmitted in each case. For Andrea K. these are 50 euros and for Franz K. 300 euros. This corresponds according to the Church's calculation of the respective shares for which it is responsible. However, since Franz K. earns more than Andrea K., he paid the full 50 euros. He therefore wants to sell not only the transferred 300 euros but a total of 350 euros.

How does it work?

In point 3, Franz K. enters the amount of 350 euros in code 458. In point 2 he gives Andrea K. her social security number. If no social security number is available, the date of birth must be given.

What do these entries do?

For Franz K., a church contribution of 350 euros is taken into account. If Andrea K. then submits an L 1 (E 1) form herself, no church contribution will be taken into account – in contrast to the submission – because she has not paid any either.

Note:

- The church fee can only be deducted from those who paid it.
- Whoever enters a higher church contribution in code 458 than that was transmitted for him, announces it that he paid the additional amount for the person (partner or child) named in point 2. This amount can therefore no longer be taken into account.
- For each person, a maximum of 400 euros can be deducted. This also applies if contributions have been paid for the partner or for a child.
- Amounts that are entered in code 458 and exceed 400 euros, are not considered considered, not even for the partner or a child, because they were not paid by them.

Does the person whose contribution has been paid have to do anything?

Read point B.

Have you paid a church contribution for more than one person?

Example:

Anton B. paid a total of 380 euros in church contribution, namely 250 euros for himself, 80 euros for his wife Karin B. and 50 euros for his son Thomas B. He would therefore like to deduct 380 euros.

How does it work?

He enters 380 euros in point 3 in code 458. Under Point 2 he gives Karin B. her social security number. In addition, he declares that he not only paid for you, but also for another person by ticking the appropriate box in point 3.

What does that do?

The tax office determines which persons are affected in order to ensure that the total amount is correctly taken into account.

B. A church contribution was paid for you by your spouse or parent

Fill in point 2 and point 3.

Example:

The married couple Andrea and Franz K. received 350 euros in church contribution for 2022. Both find out in FinanzOnline which amount the church has transmitted in each case. That's 50 euros for Andrea K. and 300 euros for Franz K. This corresponds to the church's shares according to the calculations made by the church. However, since Franz K. earns more than Andrea K., he paid the full 350 euros.

Andrea K. would therefore like to disclose that the submitted 50 euros are not to be taken into account because Franz K. claimed them in his tax return (attachment L 1d).

How does it work?

In code 458 in point 3, Andrea K. enters the amount she paid, i.e. 0. In point 2 Franz K. gives her his social security number. If there is no social security number, the date of birth must be given.

What do these entries do?

In the case of Andrea K., the amount of code 458, i.e. 0, is taken into account. If Franz K. states the amount of 350 euros in code 458 in his tax return (attachment L 1d), this will be taken into account in full.

Note:

If it is not declared that - contrary to the transmission - a lower amount or no amount at all is to be taken into account, the transmitted amount is accepted. This amount will then no longer be taken into account if a partner (parent) makes a later assessment, even if this person claims it using Form L 1d.

If a higher amount was taken into account via code 458 in the case of an earlier assessment of a partner (parent) - contrary to the transmission - the share of the other partner (child) is reduced by the additional amount. You therefore do not need to submit Form L 1d if the entire amount transmitted for you has already been deducted from your partner (one parent) in the tax assessment.

The correct declaration of the amount to be taken into account (also 0 (zero) if nothing is to be taken into account) ensures that the church contribution overall correctly is allocated, so that no subsequent corrections are necessary.

C. You have made payments to a foreign beneficiary organisation or a foreign church/religious society

Fill in point 4.

Foreign organisations that do not have a permanent local facility in Austria are not obliged to transmit special expenditure data. If you have made donations or obligatory church contributions to such organisations, enter the corresponding amounts in point 4 in code 281 (donations) or code 282 (church contributions).

Note:

- Payments to domestic organisations that have not been transmitted may not be entered here.
- You must be able to provide proof of payment if the tax office asks you to do so.

D. You purchased insurance periods before 2017 and want - as before - to sell the single premium spread over ten years

Fill in point 5.1.

Enter the tenth amount to be taken into account in 2022 in code 283. This also applies if you have bought something for your partner or for a child.

What does this entry do?

The entered tenth amount is taken into account as a special expense. Tenths that are to be deducted in subsequent years must be entered in attachment L 1d in code 283 in the year in question.

E. You bought additional periods of insurance for yourself in 2022 and want to spread the single premium over ten years

Fill in Point 5.2.

Example:

Peter L. bought additional pension insurance periods in 2022 and paid 5,000 euros for them. He finds out in FinanzOnline that the pension insurance company has transferred the amount of EUR 5,000 that has been credited to his contribution account on his behalf. He would like to sell 500 euros in each of the years 2022 to 2031.

How does it work?

In point 5.2 he applies for ten-year spread by ticking the box.

What does that do?

The tax office takes into account 500 euros (one tenth of the transmitted amount of 5,000 euros). This amount will also automatically be taken into account in the following nine years. You do not need to make any entries for this in the following years.

Q. In 2022, you purchased insurance periods for your partner or a child or made payments for voluntary continued insurance for these persons

Fill in point 2 and point 5.3.

Example:

Karl M. bought additional pension insurance periods for his wife Elfriede M. in 2022 and paid 3,000 euros for them. Elfriede M. finds out in FinanzOnline that the pension insurance company has transferred the amount of 3,000 euros to her contribution account on her behalf. Since Karl M. has paid the amount, he would like to deduct it over ten years.

How does it work?

In point 5.3, Karl M. enters in code 284 the amount of 3,000 euros. He also applies for a ten-year spread by ticking the box. In point 2 he gives Elfriede M. her social security number. If no social security number is available, the date of birth must be given.

What do these entries do?

For Karl M., 300 euros are taken into account. This amount is also automatically taken into account in the following nine years, he does not need to make an entry for it in the following years. If Elfriede M. then submits an L 1 (E 1) form herself, nothing will be taken into account, deviating from the transmission, because she has not paid anything either.

Does the person being paid for have to do anything?

Read point G.

Have you purchased insurance periods for more than one person or paid for voluntary continued insurance?

Tick the appropriate box in Point 5.3.

What does that do?

The tax office collects which persons are affected so that the overall correct consideration is achieved.

G. A purchase of insurance periods/ voluntary continued insurance was paid for by your partner or a parent

Fill in point 2 and point 5.3.

Example:

Karl M. bought additional pension insurance periods for his wife Elfriede M. in 2022 and paid 3,000 euros for them. Elfriede M. finds out in FinanzOnline that the pension insurance company has transferred the amount of 3,000 euros to her contribution account on her behalf. She would like to announce that the 3,000 euros that were sent are not to be taken into account because her husband Karl M. claims them in his tax return (attachment L 1d).

How does it work?

In point 5.3, Elfriede M. enters the amount 0 in code 284. In item 2 she gives Karl M. his social security number. If no social security number is available, the date of birth must be given.

What do these entries do?

In the case of Elfriede M., the amount of code 284, i.e. zero, is taken into account. If Karl M. states the amount of 3,000 euros in code 284 in his tax return (attachment L 1d), this will be taken into account in full or in the amount of 300 euros if he also applies for ten-year distribution.

Note:

- If it is not announced that - in contrast to the transmission - a lower amount or no amount at all is to be taken into account, the transmitted amount is accepted. This amount will then no longer be taken into account if a partner (parent) is assessed at a later time, even if this person claims it with Form L 1d.
- If an amount was taken into account via code 284 in a temporally earlier assessment of a partner (parent) - deviating from the transmission - the share of the other partner (child) is reduced by this amount. You therefore do not need to submit an L 1d form if the entire amount transmitted for you has already been deducted from your partner's (one of your parent's) tax assessment.
- The correct declaration of the amount to be taken into account (also 0 (zero) if nothing is to be taken into account) ensures that the deductible amount total is correctly assigned, so that subsequent corrections are not necessary.

H. You want company benefits to be considered as special expenses

Fill in item 6.

Note:

- Entries in point 6 are not permitted if you submit form L 1 (declaration on employee assessment).

Since company benefits according to Section 4a, Section 4b or Section 4c are only business expenses to the extent of 10% of the profit (before taking into account the profit allowance), any additional amount can be considered as a special expense will.

Example:

The individual entrepreneur Michael H. donated 1,200 euros to a charitable organisation from his business and his details are unknown. There is therefore no data transmission.

His profits (before taking into account the profit-free amount) are 10,000 euros; he also earns income from employment.

Michael H. can only consider 1,000 euros of the donation (10% of the profit) as operating expenses. He enters this amount in the income tax return (attachment E 1a) in code 9244. However, he would like the remaining 200 euros to be considered as a special expense.

How does it work?

In point 6, Michael H. enters the amount of 200 euros in code 285 > with POSITIVE sign.

What does this entry do?

In the case of Michael H. - in addition to any special expenses from a data transfer - the 200 euros are taken into account as special expenses.

I. You want to correct the data transmission for company benefits

Fill in item 6.

Note:

- Entries in point 6 are not permitted if you submit form L 1 (declaration on employee assessment).

If company benefits (e.g. donations) are recorded in a data transmission, the data transmission must be corrected so that double counting does not occur.

Example:

The individual entrepreneur Johann F. donates 500 euros twice to a charitable organisation. On the occasion of the first donation, he gave them his data. On this basis, the organisation transfers 1,000 euros.

Since Johann F. found out when preparing the tax return that he made the second donation from business funds, he entered it in the income tax return (attachment E 1a) under code 9244. However, Johann F. would like to declare that the amount of 1,000 euros sent also includes the donation of 500 euros, which he deducts as an operating expense.

How does it work?

In point 6, Johann F. enters the amount of 500 euros in code 285 > with NEGATIVE sign.

What does this entry do?

At Johann F., the special expenses from the data transfer are reduced by the amount of 500 euros so that the correct amount is taken into account as a special expense.
